TRAINING FOR BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

During the past months 18 businesses and industries have trained over 270 employees at Shelton. This fall the college will begin training all Rochester Products employees in preparation for Harrison Radiators entrance into the Tuscaloosa facility.

In the past employees have been retrained in the maintenance of Programmable Logic Controllers, and current industrial electricity and electronics theory application. Over 60 staff and management employees of a local industry participated in positive leadership training. Automotive electronics and brake repair were provided to a local independent service center. Service sector training included IBM familiar classes for legal and retail establishments. Recently training programs in hydraulics have been conducted and classes in statistical problem solving and new project orientation will be held this fall.

With the opening of the industrial training center in the spring of 1989, Shelton will have the space needed to adequately meet the training needs of industry of this area. Britt Turner is industrial coordinator for the college.
